

Home Visitation Program

Carey works at a county department of health program that is aiming to reduce infant mortality through home visitation and education on parenting, breastfeeding, childbirth, and injury prevention for pregnant women and parents of infants ages 0-3. This program is one of more than 30 throughout this southeast state. Carey is a Human Service Program Manager with the program. In this role, she provides clinical supervision, program management, and direct service through parenting education and support. Carey's goal leaving the Integration Institute was to provide the first five chapters of the Strong Relationships, Strong Families curriculum to 15 program participants. After returning back to her agency following the Integration Institute, Carey shared the information she learned at the Institute with her leadership and staff. She also utilized the resources provided to her at the Institute, such as brochures on relationship education, the “Tips for a Healthy Relationship” wheel, and copies of the entire curriculum.
